DEMOCRATS JUBILATE AT CHARLEROI MEETING

Parade and Speechmaking by Leaders are Prime Features

PALMER MAKES SPEECH

Candidate for Senate Assails Penrose—Fusion Possible on Democratic Terms

The fall Democratic campaign was opened in Charleroi Friday night under auspicious circumstances and with a show of enthusiasm. Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer, candidate for United States senator was the "big gun" present among the candidates. Other candidates who accompanied him were William M. McNair, of Allegheny county, candidate for congressman-at-large, Samuel A. Barnum, of California, candidate for congress from the twenty-fourth district; J. W. Stewart, candidate for the state senate and assembly candidates John L. Post and Cornelius Carson.

In addition to the candidates who came by automobile from Washington early in the evening were a number of Democrats of more or less note, including C. Gregg Llewellyn, of Fayette county, collector of the port of Pittsburgh; County Chairman Joe W. Martin, of Washington, County Chairman Bruce Sterling, of Fayette county; County Chairman Joseph Guffey, of Allegheny county; County Commissioner A. P. Barnum, of this county; United States Marshal Joseph Howley, of Pittsburgh and various members of the Washington county Democratic executive committee.

When the Democratic leaders arrived an auto parade began at Second street and Washington avenue that ended at the Charleroi Hotel, where a dinner was served preceding evening speaking from an auto in front of the railroad station.

County Commissioner A. P. Barnum was the chairman of the evening meeting. He first introduced M. J. Joe W. Martin was so badly damaged that it had to be towed to Washington.

The logs had been placed across the road on the hill leading into Beallsville after the auto in which Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer was riding had passed over the spot. This car was about 15 minutes ahead of the others. Gordon Lewis, of the Washington Auto Company, was driving the first machine behind the Palmer car. He did not see the logs until close upon them, but succeeded in making a wonderful quick stop and did not hit the big pieces of timber.

Several other cars were following close behind and when they were brought to a sudden halt, Chairman Martin's auto crashed into the one ahead. The front of the car was badly battered, the engine put out of commission and the radiator damaged.

In an interview Palmer spoke plainly of the question of the proposed fusion of the Democratic and Progressive tickets. He said the only fusion could be that by which the Progressives would accept Vance McCormick of their candidate for Governor.

"Wouldn't that mean that you would withdraw in favor of Pinchot?" he was asked.

"Oh, no, indeed not," he replied.

Schools to Celebrate

Anniversary of Writing of Star Spangled Banner to be Observed

The 100th anniversary of the writing of the Star Spangled banner will be observed on Monday, September 14 in the schools. Prof. I. T. Daniel has been laying plans for the observance and the song will be sung simultaneously in all the rooms at the opening of school. The anniversary observance will be in honor to the writer, Francis Scott Key. Teachers are now teaching the melody and words to their pupils in the various rooms.

LOGS ON ROAD FOR AUTOISTS

Politicians Returning to County Seat Strike Obstacle

MARTIN LOSES MACHINE

Two large logs that were evidently placed across the highway with a deliberate intent to wreck an automobile or to hold up any autoists who might happen along, resulted in Washington Democrats who were on their way home from attending the Palmer rally in Charleroi Friday night, having a narrow escape from a frightful accident. The machine of What County Chairman Bruce Sterling told him is not known.

That could never be. The Progressive and Democratic platforms in the state are closely related, but in national affairs they are entirely unlike. Hence, there could be no fusion of that nature. I shall remain in the race."

"Oh, no, indeed not," he replied.

LABOR DAY HERE TO BE QUIETLY SPENT

Holiday Hours to be Kept by Many of Stores and Business Houses—Demonstration at Eldora Park to be Big Feature

Labor day will be a quiet day in Charleroi. There will be a baseball game in the morning between the main open all day.

The big event of the day will be the celebration at Eldora park. There will be something doing there all day. Speakers of national repute will be present and deliver addresses.

There will also be sports and dancing throughout the day. Auto races have been advertised for the Belle Vernon race track and Brownsville will have a celebration.

APPOINTMENT TO BROWNSVILLE JOB CLOTHED IN MUCH MYSTERY

Only Four Democrats Out of Forty-Two Want Postoffice so Far, Yet There is Possibility of it Going to Outsider

CHAIRMAN STERLING GETS CHANCE TO SELECT

Thirty-eight of the 42 Democrats in Brownsville have not announced after the job. He has been in Union themselves as candidates for the local postmastership. Four already fairly confident of landing. Other have declared themselves as candidates to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. C. Steele. Should all of the 42 Democrats in the borough come out for the postoffice appointment, it is likely go to another than a Democrat, the chances are that Risbeck, a retired hotel man. If the post office should go to a Brownsville resident, the chances are that Risbeck will be the choice of the four residents of Brownsville borough. It is said that there are aspirants for the job who live in Redstone and Lutzen townships.

John Robinson, a well known grocer, who has been a Democrat for years, would like to be postmaster. What County Chairman Bruce Sterling told him is not known.

SINGS PRAYER MEETING HYMN AND FALLS DEAD

Mrs. Pauline Watson, aged 52, wife of Isaac Watson, of Monongahela, died suddenly about 9 o'clock Friday evening while attending a cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mrs. A. M. Gregg, in Gregg street Monongahela. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

The death of Mrs. Watson was dramatic and came as the keenest shock to her many friends and acquaintances. Friday evening she was in her usual good health when she went to the cottage prayer meeting. She had just finished singing a hymn: "All for Jesus I Surrender," and had bowed her head in prayer, when she fell forward on the floor. The women in the room rushed to her but when they raised her to a chair life had gone from the body.

Mrs. Watson was one of the best known women of the county. She was prominent in all kinds of charitable work and had taken a leading part in the activities of the Juvenile court. She was a leading club woman of Monongahela and widely known for her kindness and helpfulness to all who were in need. She was a member of the St. Paul's Episcopal church and one of the St. Margaret's Guild of that church.

JAMES BLACK, COAL MAN DIES AT HIS HOME

James R. Black, aged 55, of Forward township, Allegheny county, a prominent coal operator, died Friday at 10 o'clock at the Memorial hospital at Monongahela. Death came as a result of cancer of the liver and stomach.

The funeral services were held at the late home at 7 o'clock this morning, and the body taken to the Ebout morgue where it will lie in state until 3 o'clock, when it will be taken to Rices Landing for interment.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend both the morning and the evening service at the First Christian church Sunday. D. R. LaRue, better known as "Donnie Laurie" will deliver both sermons.

Scoutmaster Russell Blythe Makes Arrangements for Tuesday Meeting

Scoutmaster Russell Blythe has announced an organization meeting for Boy Scouts to be held at the Charleroi playgrounds on next Tuesday evening, September 8, at 6:30 o'clock. At that time he proposes to put the Boy Scout work in Charleroi on a definite basis. He was appointed Scoutmaster at the time of the Charleroi Chautauqua. He invites all boys twelve years of age, or over, that wish to be come members to be present.

AGED MAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

Samuel Walton Dies at His Home in Rices Landing

KNOWN IN CHARLEROI

Following an illness of nine weeks, Samuel M. Walton, a veteran of the Civil war and a widely known lumber dealer died Friday at his home in Rices Landing. He was 87 years of age and until his last illness was a remarkably active man.

Mr. Walton was born near Amity in October, 1827, but for the past 46 years had been a resident of Rices Landing. During the Civil war he served as a member of the 35th Pennsylvania Infantry. At the time of his death Mr. Walton was the senior member of the S. M. Walton & Sons, he having been engaged in the lumber business practically all his life.

Mr. Walton was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal church and at the time of his death was serving as a trustee, a position he had held for several years. He was a Republican in politics and while he never sought public office he was always interested in political affairs and had on several occasions been elected to borough office. He was a member of the Carmichael G. A. R.

post. Mr. Walton's wife who was Miss Sarah Ann Hilderbrand died 16 years ago.

Mr. Walton is survived by the following sons: J. A. Walton, of Rices Landing, president of the Charleroi Savings and Trust company; S. A. Walton of Doylestown, Vice-President of the First National Bank of Charleroi, and W. A. Walton, of North Charleroi, a government employee; one daughter Mrs. Anna B. Sharpnack, of Rices Landing. Roy Sharpnack and S. W. Sharpnack of Charleroi, grandchildren also survive.

SURPRISE GIVEN IN HONOR TO MISS MARY McGuIRE

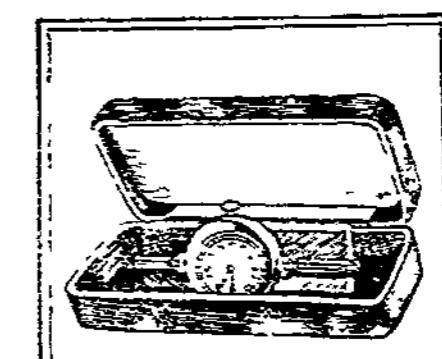

A surprise party was given Friday evening in honor of Mary McGuire at the home of Robert Callahan on Fallowfield avenue. A very pleasant evening was spent in singing and playing games and lunch was served.

ARE IN A QUANDRY

Democratic leaders are overwhelmed by the present situation. The issue today is an adequate tariff to protect American industries and keep American workingmen employed at wages beyond those of any other country. Even before the war abroad started the Democrats of Pennsylvania were face to face with an increasing demand, even from their own party, for a restoration of the Republican tariff.

The farmer was milking his cow. It switched him over the face. He pelted it with his stool and continued his interrupted labor. The cow repeated its tail movement. Another and more severe swish of the tail, a second beating, and a third.

"Finally the farmer said in desperation: 'Goddam it, I am going to vote the Democratic ticket.'"

"And there was as much reason for the prosperous citizen of Pennsylvania to leave the party of protection in 1912 as had the farmer who had trouble with his cow. Some voters of Pennsylvania might have been dissatisfied with this or that. It was not in the Republican party. Their emotionalism led them into far pastures. We had prosperity then. What have we now?"

"There are no peaceful nations now," said Mark Twain in writing of conditions. All Christendom is a soldier camp. The poor have been taxed in some nations to the starvation point to support the giant armaments which Christian governments have built up, each to protect itself from the rest of the Christian brotherhood, and incidentally to snatch any scrap of real estate left exposed by a weaker owner.

"Within the last generation each Christian power has turned the bulk of attention to finding out newer and more and more effective ways of killing Christians and incidentally a pagan now and then; and the surest way to get rich quickly in Christ's kingdom is to invent a kind of a gun that can kill more Christians at one shot than other existing kinds. All the Christian nations are at it. The more advanced they are the bigger and more destructive engines of war they create."

BORN TO THE SMALL BOY

Stepless Cars in New York Enable Him to Procure Numerous
Free Rides.

No matter what else can be said in regard to the new stepless cars now in operation on Broadway, they are certainly a boon to the small boy who depends on riding free says the New York Times.

The advent of the stepless cars has made the small boy to ride free. The boy waits for a crowded car at a corner where he notices some one else waiting. When that person crowds into the car the boy follows, unknown to the conductor. The boy makes sure to hide himself behind the form of an adult. The conductor, on his way to notice the boy, and after the car has run on for a number of blocks, the conductor cannot be positive the boy failed to deposit his nickel in the box.

AIR AFFECTED BY SOUND

Ventilation and Acoustics of Public
Places Seem General Matter of Controversy.

The effect of ventilation on the acoustics of public halls has been subject of investigation. Architects have found that currents or layers of air of different density interfere seriously with the passage of sound, but that a mass of moving air—if homogeneous—may have little influence. Rectifiers in front of the stage give especially trouble.

A book by C. Garnier mentions a new Paris theater in which air is admitted near the footlights, forming a kind of curtain between actors and spectators, and much interference results, the sound from the stage being weak, while that from the orchestra is intense.

In another theater with ventilation by heated air passed across the stage into the auditorium there was improvement in the acoustic qualities when the ventilating apparatus was working.

Another inquirer concludes that ventilation can have only slight influence in improving acoustics, that parallel layers of air may be particularly harmful, and that a single column of uniformly heated ascending air will affect sound very slightly.

By the Professor.

Professor Jones and Mrs. Jones were both of the type colloquially known as strawberry blonds. In accordance with the immemorial custom of professors' families on small salaries, at this particular southern college, the Jones family grew apace. Mary, the first, was born, and her hair came perilously near to being cerise. The twins lost to Mary in respect of red hair by just a shade. Johnny, the next, bade fair at three months to make Mary seem a neutral color. Now, Mrs. Jones longed for just one black-haired one. When the learned professor of ology from the scientific department dropped in for supper, Mrs. Jones almost tearfully propounded to him a question.

"O, doctor," she asked, "do you think it must always be hereditary?"

The doctor looked from the aureoles of Professor and Mrs. Jones to the successive four alarms of fire-red hair on the little Joneses.

"Not so much that," he assured her at last, "as redheditary."

Putting Them "In Right."

A Canadian who had been on a pleasure jaunt to New York tells of an incident of Gotham's amusement life. He went to the Carnegie lyceum. It's a big place with several different entertainments going on at the same time in various parts of the building. On this particular day they had moving pictures of Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables" on the ground floor and an orchestra concert upstairs. High-brow music-lovers and patrons of the movies would have got all mixed up in looking for their respective places of entertainment if it had not been for a big-voiced negro porter who stood at the stairs to announce in stentorian tones: "This way to the Symphony concert. Less Miserable downstairs."

Hook and Eye.

The scene was a teachers' training college: the class one of girls, the lecturer on phonetics a gentleman with a nice taste in sarcasm. "This sound," he said, "has for symbol something even you can all remember—a dressmaker's hook, just the ordinary thing you are all familiar with." As he spoke, says the Manchester Guardian, he drew the symbol in chalk on the board, and the worried pupils all laughed. Even they—to borrow the professor's remark—knew that the "hook" depicted was an "eye."

Ozone Stimulates Yeast.

A new application of ozone has just been put into use by brewers. They have discovered that the fermenting power of yeast is greatly increased by subjecting it to the influence of ozone for five minutes. The power develops only after about two days. Ozone has an inhibitive action upon objectionable organisms.

WILLED HOUSE TO WIDOWS

Good Reason Why Gaston de Jansac's
Paris Property Is Always Occupied.

For five centuries eight widows have lived at a certain number in the street now known as Rue Saint-Sauveur, in this city, says a Paris letter to the New York Sun. Not the same women all these years, of course, but always widows and always eight of them. Gaston de Jansac, who was one of the suite of Charles VII, was seriously injured at the battle of Cravant, in the fifteenth century. Eight widows of Aurier attended him and nursed him back to health. When he returned to Paris De Jansac repudiated the building which he owned in the Rue Saint-Sauveur—it was known by another name then—sent his eight angels of mercy, and installed them there for life.

Then De Jansac set aside a trust fund and drew up a legal instrument stipulating that always eight widows should live there. That was in 1423.

The original building was torn down long ago and its successor in turn gave way to another and that one to a third, but each house occupying the original site has been the home of eight widows who, otherwise, might have been public charges.

It has been proposed at times to transfer the women to a public institution, but the authorities have seen to it that De Jansac's stipulations have been followed to the letter.

RABBITS TRAINED TO WORK

Animals Eat Weeds, but Never Touch
Cultivated Plants, Declares
Their Owner.

No longer need farmers rack their backs and get stooping shoulders by hoeing out weeds, according to a statement made by James R. Reed of Trumansburg, N. Y.

By careful breeding and systematic training, Mr. Reed, so he claims, has produced rabbits which will go into a garden patch and devour all the weeds, but not touch a single cultivated plant.

During the last two years a special plot of ground has been devoted to the training of rabbits. They were kept without food for several days, and then released in the plot, which had been prepared by putting on the cultivated plants a chemical which would make the animals ill. After repeated trials the rabbits seemed to understand that they might only eat weeds with impunity, says Mr. Reed. Now, when his garden becomes cluttered with weeds, he says he starves his rabbits for several days, and then lets them into the garden, where they effectively do the work that formerly required hoeing.

America's Scientific Failure.

"I believe for any nation that has any hope of perpetual existence that the scholars are the most essential of any class of society. And may we postulate, for the sake of the argument, that God will not provide and take care of the scholars? And what is the predicament of scholarship in America? Simply this: that the institutions that have attempted to foster scholarship have not lived up to their opportunities. . . . America has not led in thought since the days of Franklin. America follows thought."

Consider some of the recent achievements in physical science; X-rays and their nature, Hertzian waves, liquid air, liquid helium, cathode rays, positive rays, radium and radioactive bodies, etc. . . . These and practically every recently proposed fundamental principle and important discovery in modern physics have come from abroad.

Soil Gives Freedom.

For the man who tills his little glebe there is the unending satisfaction of accomplishment. In his own garden he is a free being, independent of kings and of corporations. He is God's co-partner in making the earth to bring forth fruit. And when old age comes and he is compelled to retire from the activities of a lifetime, to leave his place in the ranks to be filled by a younger man, he is not one of those restless old misanthropes, shambling uselessly through his latter years. He has a worthy occupation for his old hands until his body is laid under the flowers that he loved.—The Craftsman.

Old Tower to Be Destroyed.

Just outside the Syrian port of Tripoli, lying alongside the railway track, is a famous old fort known as the Tower of the Lions, from the tradition that it was built by Richard the Lion-Hearted of England. As a matter of fact, it is one of six such forts built by the Crusaders to protect the coast, only one other of which exists, and which is in a poor condition. Now the Tower of Lions is to be demolished, to make room for the railway, much to the discomfiture of archaeologists, who would like to see this old fort preserved as a relic of antiquity.

Nursing the Electors.

The vigorous speeches of M. Jean Pichépin, the poet, as a candidate in the elections for the French chamber are attracting considerable attention.

"You are not worthy of the name of citizens!" he tells the electors. "You are merely brutes! You are only dogs! You are all cowards!"

To follow this up by addressing his possible future constituents, through the press, as "wretches, mercenaries, jackals, savages, howling wild beasts!"

GAVE UP RICHES FOR LOVE

German Prince Sacrificed Career and Estates for the Sake of the Woman He Loved.

It was with a proud spirit of self-sacrifice that Prince Eberwyn zu Bentheim-Steinfurt, cousin of the queen of Holland, gave his hand a short time ago in the London registry office to Fraulein Lanfenfeld, the daughter of a tradesman who had begun life as a peasant. The German emperor himself had vainly tried to dissuade him from such a "mad step." He turned a deaf ear to all the threats and entreaties of his family, and formally renounced his inheritance to $1,250,000 a year to his younger brother, Prince Victor. And when he had thus condemned himself to poverty and obscurity, he declared, "I need not say that I am more than happy. As long as I live, I shall rejoice that I had the braveness to place my happiness and that of my bride above the mediaeval prejudices of my house."

When Prince Eberwyn was thus gladly sacrificing rank and riches for Count Hans von Hochstock, heir to the Duchy of Rohrstock, was standing at an altar in New York state with Fraulein Louise Carow, a German shop girl for whose sake he had abandoned his claim to the family estate and dignities. "I am going to earn my living as a chauffeur," this young hero of romance said; "and I know that I shall be happier sharing a poor home with the woman I love than if I were Duke of Rohrstock with $500,000 a year but without her."

Such romances of today could be multiplied almost indefinitely—from the love adventures of the Archduke Leopold of Austria to the nephew of the emperor, who was content to be a royal outcast for the sake of Fraulein Ritter, farmer's daughter and domestic servant, to the Prince de Broglie, who long ago was conducting an orchestra in a New York theater, while the wife for whom he had sacrificed everything but happiness—the greatest thing of all—was singing on the stage.

Court Doctor to Pharaoh.

Surgery is necessarily one of the most ancient of the sciences. Archaeologists have for instance just discovered records of a surgeon who lived during the fifth Egyptian dynasty, and must have been court doctor to the Pharaoh Sahura, some 4,000 years before Christ. The first surgical implements of which anything is known are splints found in the Nubian desert. In one place a grave was found, and here were remains of bodies with fractured limbs that had been set with bark splints. One was a right thigh-bone that had been broken, and was still held in position by a workmanlike splint and bandages. All the knots were true reef-knots, and the wrapping showed how the strips of palm-fiber cloth were set just as a good surgeon would set them nowadays,

Cry is for Leaders.

There are plenty of common men. Leaders are scarce. Yet every man has in him latent potentialities which can make him famous if he will only give himself a chance. Every man has some line in which he can become a specialist. You can do some things better than your neighbor. Learn to do them better than anybody else and the world will make a place for you. It needs your peculiar genius to complete its efficient roll. You need the reward it offers. Step out into your place and receive what is coming to you. It's only a fiction that says there is no place for you. Few live up to their possibilities.

British Trolley Lines.

In 1912 the trolley lines of Great Britain carried more than 3,000,000,000 passengers. This traffic was carried on 2,642 miles of track and in less than 13,000 cars. Significant also is the fact that whereas in 1900 there were 37,000 horses employed in hauling street cars, in 1912 there were only 1,500.

Comparison with Cave Man. Everything considered, it is possible that the cave-man had an advantage over us. For though his words were few in number he had few ideas to voice, few thoughts to express, few actions to advance, and these were all of such a nature that his mind was encyclopedic in its ability to retain. On the other hand, life is now so complex that with all our words, indeed more, accents, numerals, postures and gestures we are often unable to make our meaning perfectly clear.

Shrewd Butcher.

A certain English butcher, who sold about 30 cooked legs of pork per week, said his loss was formerly 40 per cent and now only 22 per cent in the electric oven, or a clear saving of 18 per cent. After deducting the cost of the current at two cents per unit, his saving amounted to 50 cents per leg of pork, or $15 per week extra profit. On being told that he had only saved water, he answered: "Perhaps so; but, you see, my customers pay me 25 cents per pound for it!" Popular Electricity.

IN THE GREAT SOUTHWEST

Novelists May Exaggerate Facts, But It is Truth That There Is Always Something Doing.

"To the young man seeking legitimate adventure I could give no better advice than to get a moderate speed boat, a pair of overalls and a horse, and to strike out into the cow country," says Dan Coolidge, whose love of cowboy life, "Bet Wing Boats," has been emulated. "If he has the nerve with which I have endowed Boats, he will run out, if he hasn't, he will get the adventures all right. But he won't find the Arizona he has learned to expect from fiction. The good old days that Alfred Henry Lewis writes about in his 'Wichita Tales,' while representing to a degree the spirit of the early Texas settlers, are of course, not to be taken seriously at this late date, and even the stories of Stewart Edward White, and they come pretty straight from the cattle country, have a little rainbow across the western corner, which catches the local color and throws it up big. As for the unknown and struggling authors who put up the bulk of Arizona stories many of them have never enjoyed the privilege of a visit to the enchanted mesa of their imagination, and they are more often in ignorance than with intent to deceive, but even by the test of their stories there seem to be more fair women and brave men in the territory than one would expect to find in a sparsely settled community, and no matter how many gun plays are pulled off, the shooting is invariably excellent. However, no matter how divergent from truth the different Arizona stories may be, they all give you the idea that there is something doing in the great Southwest, which is correct."

BEYOND DOUBT A PATRIOT

Sympathy of Italian Very Plainly With America in Controversy With Mexico.

He entered the trolley with a hoe, which the conductor ordered him to leave outside. Very broad very dark, with Italy written all over him. A drummer sat in the corner with a newspaper. The Italian sat by him. He was excited and had difficulty in composing himself. He tilted his head toward the newspaper held by the drummer.

Finally he whispered eagerly, "How many?" The drummer was surprised, but he answered rather shortly, "If you mean Americans, four were killed." The Italian still looked anxious, "But Mexicans?" he said. The drummer looked interested. "Two hundred," he said. "Two hundred, good, good," the Italian exulted and his mouth curved into a broad smile of complete satisfaction and his eyes beamed. Thereafter he contentedly watched the pictures of United States battleships, and the drummer good naturedly slanted the paper toward him.

He fairly radiated American citizenship.—Newark News

Germany Takes to Ragtime. Notwithstanding the prevalence of folk songs among the peasantry he deeply-rooted love for classical music that pervades all Italy retards the introduction of American "ragtime" music which is making its way but slowly in that kingdom. In Germany, on the other hand American music especially ragtime, is very popular and has a good and ready sale, says a United States consul report.

A German music publishing firm in Berlin is said to copy the popular and "catchy" instrumental music and sell it in all parts of Germany, songs are also translated and published by this firm, and some of these American songs are quite popular. Music dealers in Strasburg say the German firm referred to can sell the copied music more cheaply than the original can or imported from America.

Where Mr. Gloom Draws the Line. "I inherited a mean disposition from a fine old family, and have never cared to improve it any," confessed J. Fuller Gloom, the prominent pessimist of Snuffles, Mo. "My neighbors often allege that I am no better than I ought to be, and I acknowledge that they are probably right about it. I have had several relatives in the legislature, and have never taken any pains to conceal the disreputable fact. Still, somehow, I cannot bring myself to the point of rushing into print with the claim that General Villa is a cousin of mine"—Kansas City Star.

Montessori Kid. Apropos of the Montessori method and other radical changes introduced in the education and upbringing of children, F. Irving Fletcher, the ornate after-dinner speaker said at a tea at Sherry's in New York.

"An old-fashioned mother was about to spank her little girl. She had her, therefore in the old-fashioned way across her knee. But the child and Montessori ideas, and before the slipper could descend she swung round on her face and said:

"If I'm to be spanked, mother, at least let me have some air."

Christmas Feeling.

"Oh Mr. Fipperley," she exclaimed, soulfully, "have you ever felt a dim, uneasy sense of oppression as if the mere weight of life were a burden too heavy to be borne by the chanced spirit panting with psychic longing to be free?"

"I invariably have such a feeling at Christmas time," was the callous response, "but hitherto I have attributed it to pudding!"

COUNTING WAR'S COST

WHAT MODERN NAVAL WARFARE MEANS IN DOLLARS

English Costs Give Some Figures. Iraq Shows Burden Taxpayers—By the Expenses From Early Days Cost a Fortune.

Our wonders of the day to the world, the Iron Duke, is launching its first. The Iron Duke has been a great success and is upon to a new level. It is a easy to get out the cost of a battleship, but considering the $1,000,000 has been spent on the construction of the Iron Duke, which has just been completed at Portsmouth, and that her guns are to power and shot at the rate of seven per minute, it would be a somewhat expensive business for the taxpayer if many such vessels were enabled or lost.

The Iron Duke is the world's most powerful ship, and has many unique features. She is the first battleship to be equipped with specially designed guns for fighting enemies in the air. These guns are capable of sending projectiles, specially designed for the purpose, to a height of over 10,000 feet at the rate of twelve or thirteen a minute. The Iron Duke is also the first vessel to carry a battery of twelve six-inch quick-fires for beating off the attacks of torpedo craft. Most of the earlier ships were armed with four-inch guns for this purpose, but torpedo craft have grown so rapidly, and it is now possible for torpedoes to be fired effectively from such long distances that the mounting of heavier guns has become imperative. Hence the six-inch guns, which throw a huge broadside projectile, and are the largest man-handled guns in the British navy.

The latest scientific instruments with which the Iron Duke is fitted enable these big guns to be aimed with marvelous accuracy, a score of 100 per cent hits being frequently made with them.

It is interesting to contrast this super-dreadnaught which is 575 feet long has a displacement of 25,000 tons, and is fitted with turbines of 29,000 horsepower, which enable her to travel over twenty-two knots an hour, with the last Iron Duke, a first-class battleship launched almost exactly forty years ago, which was only 280 feet long and displaced 6,019 tons.

Her armament consisted of ten nine-inch and four sixty-four-pounder muzzle loaders. The total weight of her armor was 924 tons, about one-tenth of the weight of the new ship's protection. The hull and machinery of the ship in 1870 cost $73,570 and $250, $25 respectively, the corresponding costs for the new vessel being $5,159, $55 and $1,355, a striking illustration of the growth in the cost of battleships.—Tit Bits

Home Remedy Dangers. It is quite pleasing to hear persons praise the harmless efficacy of domes remedies but no one knows better than the physician in general practice that the ignorant use of such remedies is a great feeder to the profession. One of these remedies, popularly supposed to be innocent, is turpentine, applied as a rubefacient. In the New York Medical Record is given a case tending to disprove this assumption. When one year old a slight eruption began. To this a preparation of camphorated oil and turpentine was applied, as the child suffered from bronchitis. The eruption greatly increased spread over the back, shoulders and chest and also to a less extent on the cheeks and forehead, and consisted of morbid pustules, annoying and painful. The lesions, as they healed, formed white pitted scars and fibrous thickenings dotted over with pits.

Showed Wealth of Egypt. The khedive's tour through the Delta, which he has now completed, has shown in a remarkable manner the wealth of the land owners in the provinces. In many places private individuals decorated the roads over which the khedive motored for distances of several miles.

Coffee was served in cups worth $2,000; the chair in which the khedive sat during brief visits to the country houses had in many cases cost from $1,000 to $1,500, and one person who entertained the khedive for half an hour is alleged to have spent $5,000 on the preparations, while another borrowed a cannon from the Egyptian army and fired a salute as the khedive arrived.

In many places the crowds were so great that the khedive's motor car was unable to proceed. Frequently the elabah (natives) kissed the car to demonstrate their loyalty.

Rus's Tribute to His Wife.

In "The Making of an American," published two years before the death of his first wife Jacob a Rus wrote of her as David Copperfield might have written of Agnes. He said:

"I dreamed a beautiful dream in my sleep, and I awoke and found it true. My Silver Bride they called her just now (1903). The frost is upon my head indeed: hers winter had not touched with its coldest breath. Her scoffs the highest, her laugh the merriest in the house. The boys are all in love with their mother; the girls tyrannize and worship her together. The cadet corps elect her an honorary member, for no stouter champion of the flag is in the land."

PATRONS OF "MANLY ART"

Five Monarchs of Great Britain Noted for Their Admiration of the Fistic Game.

When King George V recently attended a public exhibition of boxing at the barracks of the Second Life Guards, and applauded the exhibition of the "manly art" furnished by Bomber Wells and Pat O'Keefe, as well as the bouts between soldier pugilists, he did not establish a royal precedent. Every one of the five Georges who have ruled Great Britain has been a patron of boxing and enthusiastic in his admiration of the sport. George II, who ascended the throne just two centuries ago this year, was the first royal boxer. The modern fistic game had its beginning during his reign, when James Figg of Thame, Oxfordshire, became the first champion of England. George I, until his death, did everything in his power to promote the boxing game. When his son, George II, came to the throne in 1728 he gave royal encouragement to the sport and took private lessons from Broughton. The latter is said to have invented the first "gloves" (called "mufflers"), in order to prevent the possibility of damage to the royal countenance. George III was even more enthusiastic in his admiration of boxing than his predecessors. He boxed well, and, a century ago, he gave a boxing show to celebrate the triumph over Napoleon, the spectators including the rulers of Russia and Prussia. An ex-champion, Jim Belcher, was asked to form a coronation guard of honor, composed of boxers, when George IV (a brilliant boxer) was crowned in 1820. William IV was not interested in boxing, and Queen Victoria is said to have sought to stamp it out. Under George V it is apparent that boxing is to be again in royal favor. The king long ago learned how to box.

'UNCLE JOE' RADIATES HUMOR

Former Speaker Illustrates Small "Kick" by Relating Really Good Little Story.

"Well, boys, I'm on my way to Bar-nuda to boil out," said Uncle Joe Cannon to a group of New-York reporters. "I hope you'll have cheaper taxicab fares when I get back."

"Do you think our taxicab rates are high, sir?" asked a young lady reporter.

Uncle Joe, chewing the end of his cigar, smiled grimly.

"Did you never hear of the New York house-breaker?" he said. "Well, a house-breaker rose up from behind a hat rack in a New York house as the owner entered late one night."

"Throw up your hands!" he said.

"The owner did so."

"Gimme all yer money."

"But," said the owner, "I've just come home in a taxicab."

"The house-breaker's ferocious manner changed. He looked at his victim kindly. Then, putting his hand in his pocket, he said:

"Here, my poor fellow, is a quarter for ye. So long!"

New York's First Steam Ferryboats.

One hundred years ago the first steam ferryboat between New York and Brooklyn, named the Nassau, began running. Two years previously the first steam ferry between New York and New Jersey was established. For many years, until the opening of the Brooklyn bridge in 1883, the ferry-boats afforded the only method of regular transportation between the two populous cities separated by the East river. In the course of time the service expanded until hundreds of the steam ferryboats were plying between Manhattan and various points on the Long Island and New Jersey shores and the islands in the bay and the East river. With the completion of new bridges and the opening of the tunnels under the East and North rivers the ferry traffic has diminished and doubtless in time will become extinct.

Very Easy. The late Charles H. Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilder, had little sympathy with Socialism, and he used to tell this story:

"I had a Socialist draughtsman in my shipyard," so he would begin. "The draughtsman said to me one day:

"The world's all wrong. Mr. Cramp, if I had my way I'd make a new law compelling the rich to divide up everything with the poor and then we'd all start equal. Wouldn't that be grand, eh?"

"Grand? No!" said I. "In ten years after that equal start there'd be the same inequality there is now."

"Then," said the draughtsman, cheerily—"then we'd divide up again. Divide up every ten years. It's as easy as rollin' off a log, isn't it?"

Peruvian Antiquities.

A remarkable collection of Peruvian antiquities, dating back, so archeologists believe, at least 3,000 years, has just been received by the American Museum of Natural History. In the collection are about 700 specimens of Nazca pottery and rare examples of textiles, feather work, and primitive slings decorated with quaint designs. It is by far the largest collection acquired by any museum in this country. Soon after the museum's collection was forwarded to New York the Peruvian government passed a law prohibiting the shipment of specimens of art to foreign countries. This early Peruvian art is so rare that a museum in Berlin has only four specimens of Nazca pottery.

BENTLEYVILLE

The freshmen of Bentleyville High school are not very blissful at the present time. The juniors and the seniors trussed a freshman with half-inch rope and proceeded to perform the initiation penalty. After dragging the freshman along the street bare-headed and coatless, he was propped against a brick wall and in that position was photographed, the hempen fettters showing prominently in the photograph.

Meetings to Close Sunday.

The meetings of the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene at the Bentleyville campgrounds will close Sunday. During the entire session of meetings the services have been excellent. District Superintendent Rev. N. B. Herrel is in charge of the services. Several mission workers, among them missionaries from Japan are present. It is expected that the last Sunday will mark the greatest attendance.

Knights of Malta Elect.

Friday evening the local commandery of the Knights of Malta elected officers for the ensuing term. Those elected are: Sir Knight Commander, Arthur Tunnecliffe; generalissimo, Warren Crumrine; captain general Emery C. Snyder; prelate, Leonard E. Sands; and assistant recorder, Dr. W. R. Robinson. The newly elected officers will assume duties in a week or two.

Arranging for Labor Day.

The manager of the Bentleyville ball club is arranging to have a fast team compete with the strong Bentleyville boys in two games on Labor Day. It is thought that a successful arrangement can be brought to an issue with the potent California A. C. The business men of the town will also support the day.

Miss Eliza Parson returned Friday for a month's trip to Chautauqua, Niagara Falls, Toronto and other points.

CONTRACT SITUATION PECULIAR

A conference was held Friday between the county commissioners and their solicitor and several contractors, relative to the situation that has arisen out of the action of Controller Underwood in refusing to approve certain estimates for road work done in the county and refusing to approve estimates for resurfacing of certain roads. The matter developed while Solicitor Baum was away, and immediately upon his return the matter was referred to him. He advised the commissioners that their hands were tied, so long as the controller refused to act.

The contractors were called into the meeting and the commissioners gave them the opportunity of canceling their contracts, if they so desired. It is understood that they will hold to the contracts. The question was thoroughly discussed, and in all probability those having a money due on estimates will have to bring a test action. Those having contracts and wishing to proceed with them may have to bring suit on them. The estimates held up are for work done, amounting to over $100, the controller held that the work should have been advertised as required by law. As to the contracts held up, bids were asked without the controller authorizing the advertisement, it appearing over the name of the chief clerk of commissioners.

Party from Donora.

MONKEY PLAYFUL; BITES OFF FINGER OF HIS DIRECTOR

He who monkeys with the monkey can expect to be monkeyed with. So thinks one of the employees with the Hampton carnival which is exhibiting in New Eagle this week. Thursday night while one of the attendants was explaining the origin, habits and customs of the monkeys to a large and interested audience one of the little animals became insulted monkeys often do, you know, and took a bite at the fellow's hand. One of his fingers got in the road, or rather got in the monkey's mouth and the result is that the fellow hasn't got nearly as much finger today as he had Thursday. Where the balance of it went is a matter of conjecture. But when it was last seen the monkey had it.

The man whose name was not learned, visited a local physician and had the injury dressed but the man of medicine couldn't return that which the monkey ate and it was a goodly portion of the end of one of his fingers too.
